Acoustic guitar live sound, how to beef up? - Gearslutz
I run sound at a lot of bluegrass festivals. Taylors, Martins, Blue Ridge, etc. I have found that using a small condenser on the guitar works best, but a large diaphragm condenser like a Shure KSM 32, CAD M179, etc. will work well also.

Mixing Acoustic Guitars Live - Sound On Sound

Probably the first thing you'll hear once you've turned up the gain and lifted the fader is a very spiky sound (often referred to as 'quack') that barely resembles that of the guitar being played acoustically. This is because piezo pickups sense sound from directly under the guitar's bridge, so rather than the lovely 'bloom' that happens when a guitar's strings, neck and body excite each other
